The newspaper started publishing as the weekly Abilene Reporter, helmed by Charles Edwin Gilbert on June 17, 1881, just three months after Abilene was founded. It is hence the oldest continuous business in the city. It became a daily newspaper in 1885. History Two months after starting the paper, a fire destroyed several buildings in Abilene, including Gilbert's office. He rode the train 21 miles east to Baird and used a borrowed printing press to produce an extra edition on the fire. Two other Abilene papers began publication in the 1880s.[1] The newspaper, owned in the early 1920s by Bernard Hanks, became one of the two original flagships of the Harte-Hanks newspaper chain in 1924.[2] In 1937, the company merged its morning paper, The Morning News, with the afternoon Daily Reporter to form the Abilene Reporter-News. The newspaper published morning and evening editions into the 1950s.[3] The E. W. Scripps Company bought the newspaper, along with other Texas-based Harte-Hanks papers, in 1997.[4] The company spun out its newspaper assets into Journal Media Group in April 2015.[5] References ^ Texas Historical Commission, historical marker, Abilene, Texas. ^ Abilene Reporter News: About Us Archived September 27, 2007, at the Wayback Machine, accessed January 24, 2007. ^ Kincaid, Naomi Hutton. Review requests are sent by email to customers who purchased the deal.Filter Aspect ListTawnaAZ Republic does not honor the full 52 weeks. They start sending you bills about 9 months out and then they tell you that their rates have changed and so the groupou no longer works. It is like they are reading off a script when you call them to discuss the situation. They keep referring you back to groupou and they are no help.Great deal- until the Press Gazatte cancelled the prepaid subscription early and will not reinstate my order unless I renew with another subscription. After being promised a return call from the manager and never receiving a response (after 4 calls) VERY disappointed in their service. No wonder the paper is struggling.I received about 4 papers and the the Milwaukee Journal wanted to charge me for them at $16.17. Would not recognize the Groupon that I used on April3 2019. Said I had to contact Group On who never got back to me and the Milwaukee Journal would not contact Groupon. This is the second time buying the Milwaukee Journal and not getting the paper. Look at my previous purchase thru Groupon. It expired.The absolute worst! I was never able to redeem value of the voucher and when I tried to get support through either Groupon or the RCJ, both failed completely by pointing me at each other! The redemption process itself is ridiculous and very unintuitive, which is why I needed help in the first place, and at the time I was recovering from near-death major surgery. I truly did not have time or energy for all the months of back and forth they kept putting me through...over granting me $10 website access. That I PAID FOR! I was told repeatedly by four or five different reps that it had been fixed, but they had simply lied and blown me off. So I wasted months waiting for information from these people on how to access my subscription, got nothing, then had to waste my time contacting them again. Wash, rinse, repeat, until the rep that finally took action, but by then it was far too late. When I finally got through to the rep who cared enough to assist, I was given about two months of access, which in actuality meant about six articles or so, for as much as I actually used it, before it cut me off. I had bought this same Groupon for a couple of years with the print edition and loved it, then they stopped offering it, so when they did it again as a digital-only last year, I jumped on it. My bad!Absolute nightmare. They renewed without permission AND I had signed up for another print subscription which includes digital. Have wasted HOURS calling them-it's three months at least now. Have to get a Supervisor. Supervisor swears the bogus bill I got NOW for THIS at more than $30 will be deleted, but every month it comes. TOTAL MISTAKE to have used this.jackDisaster Worked fine for a month Then stopped News press customer service all screwed up Had to call 8 times Still trying to get it rightThey have been trying to charge me for a full year of the paper that I never received. Call customer service and it's just a foreign call center and they are terrible to deal with.See all reviewsEarned when a user has written 5 or more reviewsWant to earn this badge?
